NEW BOOKS

Of the approximately 200 new books received by the Army Medical Library each month a few are being chosen, more or less at random, for brief mention here.

HUGHES, WENDELL L. Reconstructive surgery of the eyelids. St. Louis, C.V. Mosby co., 1943, 180p.

This work was presented as a thesis for admission to the American Ophthalmological Society and represents the evolution of methods for the reconstruction of new lids. A historical review of previous methods is given in connection with citations from 451 literature references pertaining to the subject.

OCKERBLAD, NELSE F. & CARLSON, HJALMAR E. Urology in general practice. Chicago, The Year book pub. co., inc., 1943, 383p.

The physician in general practice is told how to do better those things that are within his province in the realm of genito-urinary diseases and the limits beyond which the best interests of his patients require that he obtain the help of a specialist are defined.

REGAN, LOUIS J. Medical malpractice. St. Louis, The C.V. Mosby co., 1943, 256p.

The subject of medical malpractice is presented briefly, yet with sufficient detail to enable the physician to inform himself of his legal obligation to his patient and to learn the ways in which he may safeguard himself against malpractice claims.

RUNES, DAGOBERT D., editor. The dictionary of philosophy. 2. ed., New York, Philosophical library, inc., 1942, 342p.

This dictionary provides teachers, students and laymen interested in philosophy with clear, concise, and correct definitions and descriptions of philosophical terms. All the branches of philosophy are covered as well as the schools of ancient, medieval and modern philosophy.

SHATTUCK, GEORGE CHEEVER & WILLIAM JASON MIXTER. Handbook of health for overseas service. 2. ed. Cambridge, Mass., Harvard university press, 1943, 228p.

This book is especially designed for use under conditions where professional medical advice or assistance is unobtainable. Personal hygiene, important tropical diseases and pests, emergencies and hygiene peculiar to the tropics and the arctic, surgical first aid, and certain pharmacological essentials are all discussed from the point of view of the lay mind.

VAUX, MORRIS W. & MARIO A. CASTALLO. The mechanics of obstetrics. Philadelphia, F.A. Davis co., 1943, 217p.

This profusely illustrated text-book of mannequin obstetrics is used in teaching the mechanics of obstetrics to students during the junior year at the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia.

ZILBOORG, GREGORY. Mind, medicine & man. New York, Harcourt, Brace & co., 1943, 344p.

In order to correct psychological misconceptions, the author discusses the newer conceptions concerning cultural anthropology and present-day sociology, and produces a clear pattern of social and anthropological forces upon man and his behavior.
